

Nestled within a pecan grove, a home built in the 1850's, Pope's Museum has seen authentic and beautiful transformation under the vision of Michelle Dean, proprietor. Ignored and abused in times past, Michelle has breathed new life into the history of this Grady County property, receiving the prestigious award of being recognized on the National Registry of Historic Sites. The estate was initially owned and established by well-known local artist and patriot, Laura Pope Forester, who created many statues on the property for the purpose of honoring those serving in WWI, as well as their families. Michelle brings forth the history of a bygone era with great passion as she welcomes both private and public groups to share in this unique historic site, that she and her family now call home.
